Dear sir,

This is with reference to your newspaper article in today's edition of The Rise regarding unethical practices used by political leaders to win State elections.

The reference to my father Mr. James Stone of winning last elections by illegal means is baseless and in bad taste. The reporter has not gathered complete information and resorted to adding his own script by calling Mr. James a manipulator and bad for democratic society.

All above allegations without proof amount to character defamation which we strongly refute and feel that were not investigated by your paper's top editorial board.

My father is heading many social organizations and even is a receipt of the best citizen award last year. On behalf of the family, we request to issue an apology in the press with immediate effect or we will be forced to take legal action against your newspaper.

We call upon you take action and doubly check your sources before printing defamatory articles in your paper.

Sincerely,
Alberto Walsh
