Triscane Magistrates Court

Your Honor,

I've known Harry Granados since 10 years ago. Harry's grandparents live across the street from me. Lionel lived with his grandparents until five years ago. He is friends with my children and regularly visits his grandparents and comes over at my request.

I've had the opportunity to trust Harry to give me my mail while I was away for a short holiday, and I've had the chance to rely on him to tend to my cat while I was going on vacation. His troubled childhood led to a number of serious issues. The Department of Heroes placed him with his grandparents before he was 14. I have no idea what motivated this relocation.

Harry has held several occupations since his deal with the employer but seems like he has managed to create a successful merchandise sales occupation over the recent years. Harry has told me that it was because he was arrested for willful damage, saying that this only happened because he was drunk and agitated.

Formerly, Harry had expressed embarrassment regarding the incident and would not frequently behave as he did then. He had also indicated his willingness to pay for the replacement of broken glasses.

Yours Sincerely,
George R. Wolfe
