Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing in reference to Case number 6, which involves Henry, who is asking about a custody case.

Henry and I have been buddies for five long years and I have a good understanding of his moral character, so I advise you to consider delivering this letter to your receiver.

Henry is set up with a brief biography of himself. He has always been loving, generous, and suitable to others. He has a strong sense of duty, therefore, it is easy to see that when Henry is supposed to be working. He values integrity and also makes sure that what he's describing is right.

It is difficult to choose between alternatives like this when you are not familiar with the person whom you're facing, so I request that you take a look at what is being written here, and compare it to the other letters you've gotten and including that Henry is someone whom people rally around. This means that the meanness of someone is readily apparent, so stick with it.

Thank you,
sincerely
Adam P. Hartley
